

Resume of Sorin Ciutacu

Dr Sorin Ciutacu earned his combined honours in English and Latin and his PhD in English Semantics and Philosophy at the University of Bucharest, Romania in 1986 and 1999, respectively. He also earned a Master Degree in Political Sociology from the West University of Timisoara in 2002. He has held different research scholarships and grants from sundry European universities and has spent academic time and/or taught in: Cambridge, Oxford, Birmingham, Edinburgh, London, Amsterdam, Utrecht, Paris, Heidelberg, Bonn, Berlin, Frankfurt am Main, Vienna, Brussels, Gent, Aveiro, Catania, Bari, Sassari, Roma etc.

Between 1991 and 2011 he taught at the West University of Timisoara, Romania various courses in English Linguistics (A Cultural History of English, Semantics, Terminology, Sociolinguistics), Germanic Linguistics, Translation Studies, British, American and Dutch Studies, European Studies, Nationalism Studies, Cultural History and History of Ideas at BA, MA and PhD level.

Between 2011 and 2016 he was Associate Professor of English Linguistics at King Khalid University, Abha, Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, where he taught History of English and English Morphology as a Visiting Professor and sat on sundry research boards and journal editorial boards.

Dr Sorin Ciutacu is currently Senior Lecturer in English & Germanic Linguistics and Cultural History at the West University of Timisoara, Romania. In 2018 he was granted the Professor Bologna award. He has sat on sundry Ph D exam boards since his return to WUT in 2016.

Dr Sorin Ciutacu has presented over 60 papers at international conferences in Europe and Asia, has published around 50 articles and has co-authored several books. His forthcoming book is: "Causality and Semantics" and he is currently working on three other books called: "Purism in English. The History of the Idea", "From Local to Global English. A Cultural History of English" and "Introduction to Germanic Studies".